

ANOTHER SUFFOLK PLANT IS BURNED

Saw and Planing Mill of Montgomery Lumber Company Destroyed.

CAUSES LOSS OF $45,000

Fifth Big Fire of Summer, Throwing Total of 1,200 Persons Out of Work.

Suffolk, Va., July 9.—The sawmill and planing plant of the Montgomery Lumber Company were burned about 9 o'clock this evening, involving a loss of $45,000 and affecting 400 employees. All the fire engines of the city threw streams on the flaming pile, and it appears at a late hour that the logs and manufactured lumber, of which there were more than $200,000 worth on the yards, will be saved. This is the fifth manufacturing plant destroyed here during the summer, bringing a money loss of $400,000 and releasing from employment 1,200 persons.

Police Chief Brinkley proclaimed tonight that most of the blazes were started by firebugs, but there is no semblance of a clue. All of the recently ruined plants are being or will be rebuilt on more elaborate plans. To-night's losses are covered by insurance.

The alarming frequency with which disasters have followed has caused distress among laboring people and consternation among many retail shops. Never before in Suffolk's history have calamities followed in such sequence. As the fire alarms rang this evening people fled from the churches, which soon were almost deserted.

GOMPERS FAILS TO STIR WRIGHT

Justice Declines to Discuss Criticism Made by Labor Leader.

Washington, D. C., July 9.—Justice Dan Thew Wright, of the District Supreme Court, is giving himself no concern over the suggestion of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, that impeachment proceedings should be instituted against him. Justice Wright declined last night to discuss the remarks made by Mr. Gompers yesterday before the "third degree" committee of Congress.

In the course of his speech the labor leader expressed the opinion that the Supreme Court justice, who once imposed a jail sentence upon him, which was vacated in a decision by the United States Supreme Court, deserved to be impeached.

Criticism of Committee. Some criticism was heard last night among members of the bar as to the opinion displayed by the Senate committee in hearing a statement from a party litigant in criticism of a judge before whom he is under subpoena to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court. The opinion was expressed that the hearing should have been postponed until Gompers and his associates had answered the rule against them, which is returnable July 17.

It was stated in behalf of the committee last night that it has not decided to take up an investigation of the action of Justice Wright in the contempt proceedings, but that it simply waits to receive an application for an investigation and then to hear the nature of the case proposed for its inquiry before determining whether or not it was a proper subject of the investigation at this time. The hearing was granted primarily, it was stated, to allow Mr. Gompers to present his views of the "Namara arrest and transfer from Indianapolis to Los Angeles."

Doubt of Investigation. The suggestion that a committee of Senators would investigate the action of a Federal judge in a case pending and undisposed of before him was made by some of the lawyers who talked of the case. It was also declared to be highly improbable that the House of Representatives would take the initiative in an impeachment while the contempt proceedings are unsettled. The comity existing between the three co-ordinate branches of the government would prevent any such action.

While Justice Wright would not discuss the charges of Gompers, some of the friends of the justice last night asserted that all his findings of the law points involved in the contempt proceedings which were vacated had been sustained in the decision of the United States Supreme Court. The reversal was granted only because the method under which the proceedings were commenced, they said.

Approved by Associates.

Attention was also called to the fact that in issuing a new rule against Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison, the action of Justice Wright has the approval of his five associates on the bench. This is shown, it was stated, by the announcement that in the event the new contempt proceedings advance to a hearing the entire membership of the District Supreme Court will be present.

HOPES TO TRACE MISSING LETTERS

New York, July 9.—A thorough investigation to determine how nine of the eighteen letters written by W. E. D. Stokes, the millionaire hotel man, to Lillian Graham, the show girl, were abstracted, as alleged, from the package found in Miss Graham's room, has been set in motion by the Police Department. James Cummings, a hotel detective, admitted on the witness stand on Friday that he took the package from the young woman's room in the presence of police detectives two days after the shooting of Stokes, and put it in his pocket. Later, he said, he turned the package over to Stokes's counsel.

To-day a deputy police commissioner examined the detectives left in charge of Miss Graham's rooms after the shooting. He declined to make public his findings, but said that he hoped to trace the missing letters to the ultimate disposition.

SERMON BY DR. O. E. BROWN.

Feature of Closing Exercises of Southern Educational Conference.

Asheville, N. C., July 9.—The closing exercises of the Southern Educational Conference, which has been in session here for ten days, was featured by the sermon of Dr. O. E. Brown, of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn. The morning meeting was conducted by Miss Emma Tucker, of Enterprise, Fla.

The convention came to a close tonight with the "closing meeting," led by Rev. E. C. Cook, Nashville, secretary of the Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church, South. Testimonials from the delegates were heard, and the farewell message was delivered by Miss J. L. Spaulding, DeLand, Fla., who has had charge of the convention. H. S. Myers, of New York City, delivered an address as the representative of the organization, and read a message which contained greetings from the conference in session at Whitby, Ont.

GLEN COVE EDITOR IN JAIL

There a Month Now for Failing, as Executor, to Pay a Judgment.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 9.—Buell G. Davis, owner and proprietor of The Glen Cove Examiner and a well-known resident of Glen Cove, has been in the Nassau county jail since June 7, having been sent there by Supreme Court Justice Aspinwall for contempt of court.

Friends of Mr. Davis, who is a man near seventy years of age, have done everything to keep his predicament from the public gaze as much as possible. The contempt charge came, it is learned, as the result of a suit brought by George W. Seward, administrator of the William Z. King estate, against Davis, as executor of the Mary E. King estate, to compel him to pay over $15,560 owing the William Z. King estate. A judgment was obtained against Davis, and the fact that he had not responded was brought before Justice Aspinwall on June 5. On June 7 Davis was arrested, and has been confined in the jail here ever since. He will remain there until the amount is paid. From present indications, it is believed that Davis will probably remain there the rest of his life.

THOMAS F. DOLAN KILLED

Former Well-Known Jockey Shot Through Heart by Arkansas Planter.

Memphis, Tenn., July 9.—Thomas F. Dolan, twenty-six years old, an employee of a local theatre, was shot through the heart and instantly killed this evening by J. H. Hughes, a merchant and planter of Hughes, Ark., in the room occupied by Hughes in a local hotel.

The planter alleges that Dolan had taken a diamond stud from his shirt, and the altercation followed. Dolan was formerly a jockey, and was well known among the sporting fraternity.

Bank President Resigns.

Wyndus, Va., July 9.—County Clerk E. L. Kidd has resigned as president and director of the Bank of Nelson, Inc. The board of directors elected L. L. Lea as president, and Thomas Doyle as president, and Mr. Lea as vice-president of the bank, and M. E. Massie was chosen to this position.

CASTRO LIKELY TO REGAIN POWER

Officials Say Only Foreign Intervention Can Prevent His Success.

VENEZUELA AT WHITE HEAT

Ex-Dictator Is Ready for Night to Colombia in Event of Reversals.

Caracas, Venezuela, July 9.—Men high in government councils here say that only foreign intervention or unexpected and unlawful action by the United States can prevent the success of Cipriano Castro in overthrowing the government in Venezuela.

Castro, who several days ago was a myth, a flying Dutchman, about whom half the world was guessing and laughing, has become vital and real. In an inaccessible point near the Colombian boundary line, where he can escape to Colombia in the event of unexpected reversals, he is gathering to himself an army that already numbers several thousand men, who, it is believed, are equipped with modern military rifles, presumably shipped to Cuba from Europe and sent here from that republic.

The newspapers are very conservative in discussing the situation, but popular feeling is at white heat. Men boast openly that the administration will be overthrown in two weeks' time. The man who assumed a dictatorship with an army that numbered but twenty-three ranchmen at the start is again in the field, and this time with followers of a very different type.

The whole country is ready for fight. Federal troops are being recruited rapidly. The ex-dictator, it is asserted, is completely restored to health. In addition he has almost unlimited funds. Deposited with the Credit Lyonnais, France, is $5,000,000 francs ($75,000,000) in his name. A prominent Cuban banker, Silvera, who also had some experience in New York, is reported to be backing the revolution and to have said there would be plenty more funds to replenish those already available.

Secret Service Men Puzzled.

New Orleans, La., July 9.—Government secret service men here are completely nonplussed by the news that Cipriano Castro has actually arrived in Venezuela.

Following out its plan of surveillance of the Gulf Coast to prevent filibustering designs on Central American countries, the government has established a cordon of information bureaus, so that if any chance a successful expedition should leave any port or exit of the Gulf States the proper authorities would be notified within a day from the time it set sail.

Cuba is believed to have supplied arms to the former President.

How different a proposition is General Cipriano Castro, with his feet on Venezuelan soil and 1,000 men at his back, from the solitary plotter in Europe, until recently supposed to have been isolated by common consent of the powers opposed to his return to the country from which he was an exile, is readily understood in the light of his earlier bold and triumphant career. If it is true that the self-styled "man of destiny" is again in Venezuela, he must be dealt with by the Venezuelans themselves, who have not forgotten that he once overthrown the government with an army that originally numbered but twenty-three men.

It was on May 23, 1899, that Castro, then a rancher in Los Andes, took office as the Governor of the province and General Andrade, President of the republic, and determined to unseat them. He set out at the head of his handful of ranchmen, followed by the jeers of the populace. Within a month he had an army of several thousand men, and captured Valencia, the second city of the country. Advancing on the capital, he defeated Andrade's troops, and when he reached Caracas the President had fled.

For ten years Castro ruled Venezuela with an iron hand, and it was not until, broken in health, he went to Europe that his enemies mustered the strength to depose him. He has boasted that he would return to Venezuela and resume power. The United States made it their business to prevent his return if possible, but he apparently has outwitted the international watchers. In January last he was reported to be in the Canary Islands. On subsequent dates he was said to be at Los Palmas with his family, at Lisbon and at Gibraltar. Last month Washington heard that he was in London.

ington heard that he was aboard the steamer Consul Greatuck, which the Italian government had purchased after the cruiser had been dismantled by the Italian navy. The steamer arrived at Port-de-Paix, Haiti, and after a brief stop for repairs proceeded to Port au Prince. Her crew said they knew nothing of Castro, and he could not be located. His movements for several weeks were a matter of conjecture, as is the extent of the resources at his command.

DARING AUTOMOBILE THEFT

Disappearance of $3,500 Car. Arouses Greenwich, Conn.

Greenwich, Conn., July 9.—Most of the thousand owners of automobiles in Greenwich, many of them New Yorkers, are keeping a close watch upon their garages for a $3,500 touring car was stolen early yesterday morning from Belle Haven in a most daring manner, and local and New York detectives have been unable to find any trace of it. It was owned by H. M. Green, of the Mechanical Rubber Company, No. 73 Rouse Street, New York, who is occupying the Carrol home this summer.

The garage window was forced open, the door lock broken, the car coasted out of the garage and down grade to the main road, got off the road into soft dirt and then pushed into the road again, signifying that there were several men on the job. The engine was then started and the car went through the town, going eastward. Those in the house heard the cranking of the car, which went within a few feet of the building and close to two other garages while being run to the street.

NOT THE RIGHT BODY

Dead Chicagoan Sent to Colorado for Burial Through Mistake.

Chicago, July 9.—Thomas Carr died here recently. His widow had heard him speak of relatives in Colorado. A Carr family in Durango were looking for a son Thomas. They thought they had found their Thomas in the dead man. The body was shipped, followed by the widow and four children. On arrival it was discovered that the body was not that of the right Carr.

In the meantime a penniless widow and four children are somewhere in Colorado, and the body awaits burial in Durango.

DEARTH OF GUINEA PIGS

Three Hundred Used Every Week at Pasteur Institute.

Paris, July 9.—Dr. Marchoux, of the Pasteur Institute, states that the announcement in the press of a dearth of guinea pigs has led to upward of 200 offers of those and other small animals from different countries. He believes that about 300 guinea pigs a week have been used at the two Pasteur establishments. This, of course, is not for vivisection, but for inoculation with various serums for inoculation is not practiced there.

It is perfectly true, as Dr. Marchoux adds, that something like $80,000 is spent annually on the purchase and maintenance of animals for inoculation—not on guinea pigs alone, but also on horses and other subjects for the production of serum. An increasing quantity of this is required, as all the former establishments which formerly existed in France have died out, so that the Pasteur Institute has to meet the national demand, besides supplying most of the other countries. All this is a tribute to the sterling excellence of the institute.

AND A BEAUTIFUL COLORED COVER

ANOTHER GENERAL ELECTION PREDICTED

Rumor More Readily Believed in Unionist Than in Liberal Quarters—Remarkable Attack Made on King.

London, July 9.—In political circles rumor has it that the constitutional difficulty will not be settled without another general election, and that this will come sooner than has been expected—possibly within two or three months.

The rumor is more readily believed in Unionist than in Liberal quarters, and nothing definite can be ascertained on the subject; but the Unionist party is putting its house in order so as to be in readiness for all emergencies.

The greatest dissatisfaction has been openly expressed within the Unionist ranks since their last defeat at the polls at the party organization, and a committee sat for some time to investigate the matter. One result of these deliberations is that the chief whip of the party is to retire and a new post is to be created—that of "chief organizer."

For this office, Arthur Steel-Maitland, member of Parliament for East Birmingham, has been chosen. He is one of the rising hopes of the Unionist party, and a strong tariff reformer. He has been president of the famous Oxford Union, and also secretary to Austen Chamberlain. His selection to this important post shows that the protectionist wing of the party is still the most influential.

The coronation honors list provides for the decent retirement of the party whip, Sir Arthur Acland-Hood, who receives a peerage and goes to the upper house. His successor as chief whip is another young and popular member of the party, Lord Balcarres, member for the Chorley division of Lancashire.

Attack on King.

A most remarkable attack was made on the King, charging His Majesty with exaggerating the military aspect of the coronation, by Rev. Harry Youden, the clergyman who occupies the pulpit from which Dr. Acland, since of New York and San Francisco, formerly preached in Liverpool.

The attack took the form of an open letter read in the course of a sermon. It began as follows: "We owe you no loyalty except so far as the welfare of the nation depends on you. If we are cold amid the general excitement of your coronation day, it is because we are not convinced that the greatest duty of the nation is bound up with the throne. We are not revolutionaries. There are graver matters to attend to than the absurdity of royal ceremonies. I have said this much for the sake of sincerity, and that I may clear myself of the company of those who are now groveling before you and behaving like pagans before a fetish."

Then the letter goes on: "Would it make you coronation less real if you were accompanied to the abbey by men from the forge and the mine instead of by troops? Although you choose to live for the world of soldiery, not by them is your throne supported. It is open to you to choose the men of arts. You have bestowed honors which we at present despise because they have been wrongly bestowed. . . . Meanwhile genius is starving in its garret—starving unrecognized. Painters, singers, writers, actors, men of science, have to sell their souls to make a living. Nothing, sir, in your empire is so cheap as brains and genius; nothing so easily despised by the vulgar rich; nothing so tragically misunderstood and disregarded. You pay mines. The total of this reserve has been fixed for the present at 300, but it is expected that during wartime the figure would be greatly extended. The men are thoroughly acquainted with the coasts around the British Islands, and they are to receive a short annual training in their duties of mine-sweeping. Otherwise they are to be regarded as a non-combatant force.

PASTOR DENOUNCES FILMS

Dean York Offended at Pictures He Saw of Nuns.

Huntington, L. I., July 9.—Dean John D. York, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church here, in an impromptu speech at the Bijou Theatre Friday evening, electrified his audience. A roll of films, presumably depicting the life of a novice and then a nun, had just been shown, when the dean arose and protested in the name of decency, justice and right against the use of such pictures. The representation, he said, was not only untruthful and a misrepresentation, but was calculated to injure the morals of the young and was a disgrace to the amusement world.

Dean York went to the theatre to meet the manager, Mr. Rittans, as he desired to engage the theatre for a later date. The manager invited him to see the pictures. The invitation was accepted. "The Story of the Nun" was soon after put on the screen. The story presented by the pictures was of a young girl forced to leave her home and take the veil against her will. One portion showed the girl in the attire of a nun in a room with a man in the garb of a priest. In this scene, the girl, in a frenzy, seized a crucifix and dashed it to the floor, where it was broken.

The mother superior of the picture and other acted nuns were called in and shown the result of the desecration. The girl was then tried and sentenced to be entombed alive. The picture showed the girl being walled in, and just as she was about to be shut in, rescuers prevented the tragedy.

"When I saw that," said Dean York today, "I simply had to, as a matter of conscience, rise and speak against it."

Professor Vittek Dead.
